

Robin Goswami

Director VP, Head Energy (Oil & Gas) Practice Infosys

Robin is responsible for crafting the vision, implementing the strategy, managing client relationships, and sustaining organic and inorganic growth in the Infosys Energy (Oil & Gas) Practice. As one of its founding members, he has been instrumental in building the Infosys Oil and Gas Practice and in his recent role has redefined its 'go to market' strategy.

Robin has over two decades of experience spanning software development, consulting and new business development. During his career, his core focus has been on the assimilation and sharing of knowledge at the intersection of business and technology. His expertise in information technology as well as in the Oil and Gas industry has helped Infosys nurture long-term partnerships with global energy companies.

Robin is credited with enhancing the profile of the Infosys Oil and Gas Practice through an extensive outreach program, culminating in 2016 when Infosys was ranked in the Leaders Quadrant in IDC's ranking of energy companies' as well as in the Winners Quadrant in HFS' ranking – the highest possible rating in both. He also led the team that was instrumental in acquiring Noah Consulting in 2015, a niche consulting firm focused on upstream data management – only the seventh acquisition for Infosys in over three decades.

Prior to joining Infosys, Robin developed content and document management solutions at a technology startup.

Robin holds a Bachelor's degree in software engineering from the University of Pune and an MBA from IIM Ahmedabad. He is based in Houston, Texas.
