

Ross Philo

Director
President & CEO
Energistics

As President and CEO, Ross Philo provides the leadership for Energistics to achieve its vision and mission for the development and adoption of the data exchange standards for the oil and gas industry.

Responsibilities include strategic planning, operations and financial management, communications and public relations, strategic alliances, building an inclusive global user community and facilitating a collaborative standards development environment. He is a member of the Energistics Board of Directors and a member of the Standards Leadership Council.

Ross has over 35 years of experience in the oil and gas industry. He has worked for Maersk Oil, Halliburton and Schlumberger among others. He has held numerous executive management positions including CEO, CIO and other technology leadership roles. He was most recently at Cognoscenti Consulting which works with private equity and venture capital companies. Ross has lived and worked in some 30 countries worldwide in numerous management assignments.

Ross attended Imperial College of Science and Technology in the United Kingdom where he received first class honors with a BSc (Eng).